The following information is provided in response to a question in reference to the Bolling AFB Request For Proposal. Information is not included as part of the amendment and does not alter in any way the terms and conditions of the solicitation.

Bolling AFB Utility Privatization Question and Answer

1. A detailed review of the Solicitation documents indicates that for most of the electric distribution system, the demarcation line between the equipment which the Contractor will own, and that which will remain in Bolling AFB ownership, is the secondary terminals of the transformers (which have 13.2 kV primaries). Note that there are several exceptions; these have secondary loops or underground conductors to either the building meter, or to the weatherhead for overhead lines. This constitutes an inconsistency and our question is whether the line of demarcation can be made to conform. To the extent possible, can the secondary terminals of the transformer be made the line of demarcation for all locations? In this manner, all lower voltage feeders would remain Bolling AFB property, and the 13.2 kV system (including transformers and switches) would become property of the Contractor. This clear demarcation will be very helpful to both parties, particularly in emergencies.

The Governments requirement as currently specified by Demarcation Points and as currently delineated in the RFP document to include Utility Specific Attachments as well as the Right-of-Way, will remain as specified.
